NOTES TO THE CONDUCTOR

Sweet Georgia Bright is a 16-bar swing tune composed by saxophonist Charles Lloyd. This tune has become a favorite of jazz musicians since it was first recorded by Julian "Cannonball" Adderley on his release Fiddler On the Roof (Capitol Records). I have found that it is very beneficial for students to hear performances of a tune's original recording; therefore, I highly recommend playing this recording of the tune for your students. You can also hear this chart at alfred.com/downloads.

While this tune is usually played at a very bright tempo, my arrangement will work at various speeds. I suggest performing the arrangement at a tempo of at least a $\text{♩} = 160$, but most importantly, the overall feel should not be rushed or frantic. In the intro, the opening brass kicks and saxophone and (optional) guitar counter statements should be played in a uniform fashion with the roof top accents (▲) articulated with a "DAHT" syllable. Beginning at measure 9, a combo of alto 1, tenor 1, trumpet 2 and guitar present the first statement of the melody. In the stop-time passage of measures 9–16, the combo instruments should strive to accurately perform the articulations and agree on the mf dynamic level. At measure 21, the figures in both the rhythm section and combo instruments should happen simultaneously. At measure 25, the second statement of the melody occurs and the full ensemble is employed. Once again, players in all sections should focus on proper articulations, balance and blend to accurately perform this passage.

Measure 41 begins the solo section. I've written this to feature trumpet 2 the first time and alto 1 the second time. However, feel free to adapt this section to best suit your ensemble's needs. The written-out solos should serve as a starting point or guide for your students. Ultimately, soloists should work toward improvising over the chord changes. The harmonic structure of this tune utilizes five chords: C7, B \flat 7, E \flat 7, D7 and D \flat 7 (concert key), which are all Dominant 7th chords. Try not to be intimidated or overwhelm your students with discussion of modes. The Mixolydian mode is simply a major scale with a lowered 7th scale degree. It is the scale of choice for improvising over Dominant 7th chords. As with any background material, the ensemble figures beginning in 56 should serve to compliment and support the soloists, not overpower the soloist.

Measure 73 begins an ensemble section that features two melodic lines for the alto saxophones and trumpets, and then the tenor/baritone saxophones and trombones. This passage should sound like a call-and-response type of conversation and the players should focus on blend and articulation to achieve a uniform sound and style for this passage. Measure 85 uses melodic material from the introduction and should be played in a similar fashion. This entire passage at 73–88 should gradually build up to the ensuing shout chorus that starts at 89. If stamina is an issue with brass players, the repeat of the shout chorus can be omitted.

For the rhythm section, the piano, bass, and drum parts should be clear. The guitar comping slashes usually indicate a quarter note pattern keeping it understated. The written guitar lines are with other horn sections and should blend accordingly.

I hope you and your students enjoy rehearsing and performing this wonderful tune.
